September 10, 2006

A 60th birthday party for former U.S. President Bill Clinton in Toronto has helped raise $2.5 million for his HIV/AIDS initiative in Africa.

With numerous celebrities paying between $25,000 and $200,000 per table at the Royal York hotel event, Clinton asked those in attendance to aid his Clinton Foundation in its international efforts, said the Toronto Sun.

The ability of private citizens to do public good all over the world is greater than ever before, said Clinton at Saturday's party. When you have that sort of ability, it imposes on you an enormous responsibility, so I thank all of you for helping me.

The party -- part of a series of fundraising events based around Clinton's Aug. 19 birthday -- featured appearances by comedian Billy Crystal, rocker Jon Bon Jovi and Clinton's wife, U.S. Sen. Hillary Clinton, D-N.Y., the paper said.
